
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON THE COPES PROGRAM

COLUMBIA LEGAL SERVICES

JANUARY 2012

THIS PAMPHLET IS ACCURATE AS OF ITS DATE OF REVISION. THE RULES CHANGE FREQUENTLY.

1. What is COPES?

COPES is a program that pays for personal care and other services for people in their own homes. It also pays for care in adult family homes, adult residential care facilities, and assisted living facilities. It helps people who, without COPES, would need to be in nursing homes. The financial eligibility rules for COPES are very similar to the rules for the Medicaid program for nursing home care. "COPES" stands for Community Options Program Entry System.

The COPES program is administered by the Washington State Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS). You can apply for COPES at the local offices of Home & Community Services (HCS), which is a division of DSHS. You can find the nearest HCS office by calling 1-800-422-3263.

2. How is COPES eligibility determined?

To get COPES you must be financially eligible. (See Question 5.) Also you must need help, because of a physical or cognitive disability, with certain activities of daily living. Those activities are eating, bathing, transfer (e.g., moving from a bed to a chair), bed mobility (positioning), locomotion (walking or moving around), using the toilet and medication management.

To qualify for COPES, you must need extensive help with two or more of the listed activities of daily living, or at least some help with three or more. A person who needs supervision because of a cognitive impairment may qualify for COPES if extensive help with one of the listed activities is needed. Finally, DSHS must determine that you need the help described above and that your needs can be met adequately by services available through COPES.

3. How much does COPES pay?

What COPES will pay depends on how many hours of services you need. The number of hours is set after an assessment by DSHS staff. The amount COPES will pay also depends on how much of the cost of your care DSHS determines you must pay yourself, based on your income and certain allowable expenses.

COPES can pay for personal-care services in your home in two ways. It can pay a private agency or it can pay a person you hire directly (called an "individual provider"). An individual provider may be a relative but may not be your spouse. Individual providers are paid between $10.03 and $11.07 per hour. The rate depends on the number of hours worked as an individual provider since July 1, 2005.

If you receive personal-care services in your home, COPES may also pay for other services, including home-delivered meals, home health aids, skilled nursing care, adult day care, and training to help you increase what you can do for yourself. COPES may also pay for care in a group facility or home. Payment depends on the type of facility and its location. The maximum COPES pays for an adult family home ordinarily ranges from $1,418 to $4,959 per month. For an assisted living facility, the payment ordinarily ranges from $1,823 to $5,116 per month. The actual amount depends on the county and level of care needed. Under rare circumstances, when more intensive care is needed, COPES may pay a higher rate.

All COPES recipients get Medicaid coverage for other medical expenses, including physician services, prescription drugs and home health services. In addition, they get case management services – help in planning and monitoring their care. Also, DSHS pays the Medicare premiums, co-payments and deductibles for COPES program participants.

4. When does COPES coverage begin?

COPES coverage does not begin until DSHS approves a plan that describes your needs and the services that will meet them. In addition, if you choose to get personal-care services in your home from an individual provider, COPES coverage does not begin until DSHS has determined that the individual provider is capable of providing the needed services and until the provider has signed a contract. (Providers must satisfy certain conditions and pass a background check.) The medical coverage you get with COPES is effective as of the first day of the month in which your COPES coverage begins.

5. What are the basic financial eligibility requirements for COPES?

To get COPES services, both your income and your resources must be within set limits. In counting your income for a month, DSHS looks at what you received that month. Income typically includes such things as Social Security, VA benefits, and wages, in the month they are received.

In counting your resources for a month, DSHS looks at what you have on the first day of the month that you already had in the previous month. Resources typically include such things as real estate, funds in bank accounts (but not including this month's income) and stocks. Funds from a payment that counted as income last month will count as resources this month if you still had them as of the first of this month.

A. Income

To be eligible for COPES in 2012, your gross monthly income (with some fairly rare exclusions*) must be no more than $2,094 if you are single. If you are married, DSHS looks first at the income that comes in your name. If that is not more than $2,094, you may be eligible for COPES no matter how much income your spouse has. If the income that comes in your name is more than $2,094, you may still be eligible if the sum of your income and your spouse's income combined is less than $4,188.

| * Income from some sources is excluded for purposes of determining COPES eligibility. The sources are listed in Washington Administrative Code (WAC) 388-513-1340, which is available in DSHS offices, and at http://apps.leg.wa.gov/wac/. |

If you are on COPES, you will be allowed to keep a specified amount of income. If you have more than the allowable amount, you must use the rest for certain purposes (explained later in this section).

If you are on COPES and live at home, you will be allowed to keep the following amount of countable income for your personal needs (which include home maintenance): if you are single, $908 a month; if you are married and your spouse is not on COPES, $698 a month; if you are married and your spouse is also on COPES, $908 for each spouse ($1,816 total).

If you get COPES and live in an adult residential care facility, assisted living facility or adult family home, you can keep $62.79 per month (or $38.84 for certain residents on the state-funded Aged, Blind, Disabled (ABD) cash program). The next $635.21 must be paid to the facility for room and board. ($$62.79 + $635.21 = $698.$)

The rest of your income (amounts above $908 or $698) will be used as follows: (1) an amount for your spouse if you have one, as explained in Question 6 below; (2) an amount for any dependent family members living with you; (3) an amount to pay health insurance premiums or co-payments (including co-payments required by the Medicare drug program); (4) an amount to pay medical bills for services not covered by Medicaid (usually services provided before you became eligible for Medicaid), if the bills are still owed and not covered by any insurance; (5) an amount to cover certain miscellaneous items, such as guardianship fees that satisfy certain requirements.

Any remaining income must be used to pay for part of the cost of the services approved under the COPES program. The part of the cost you pay is called your “participation.” COPES covers the rest.

A Note About the Medically Needy “Spendedown” Programs

Some people with too much income for COPES may be eligible for similar services through other programs. The “Medically Needy In-Home Waiver” (MNIW) covers in-home care. The “Medically Needy Residential Waiver” (MNRW) covers services in adult family homes and assisted living facilities.

These programs, however, do not provide the protections against “spousal impoverishment” that are available through COPES. (The COPES spousal impoverishment protections are discussed in Questions 6 and 7.) Consequently, the MNIW (in-home) program will be of limited use to married individuals. Some alternative protection is available for spouses of MNRW participants (for care in adult family homes and assisted living facilities). If the application for MNRW coverage is not made until the calendar month following the month in which a married person enters the facility, only the income and resources of the applicant, plus half of any community resources, will be considered available to the applicant for purposes of the application. The remaining income and resources are preserved for the spouse who is not receiving assistance.

Note: Your COPES (or MNIW or MNRW) eligibility and personal needs allowance will not be affected by items or services, including food, clothing or shelter, that are given to you or that you receive because someone else pays for them. So, for example, if someone pays your rent for you, the payment will not count as income to you. By contrast, if someone gives you cash to pay your rent with, the cash received will count as income, and will affect your COPES eligibility and your personal needs allowance.

Also, in addition to your personal needs allowance, if you have earnings from work you will be able to keep $65 of gross earnings plus $1 out of each additional $2 earned.

B. Resources

The limit for resources (assets, property, savings) that a single person may have is $2,000. Certain "exempt" resources are not counted in determining whether you fall within this limit. Exempt resources are described below in Question 8.

A spouse of a COPES recipient is allowed to keep substantially more resources. What resources a spouse can keep is explained in the answer to Question 7. Rules about the consequences of giving away your resources are described in the answer to Question 9.

6. What income can we keep if my spouse goes on COPES?

If your spouse goes on COPES and you are not on COPES or Medicaid, your spouse is allowed to keep $698 per month and you are allowed certain additional income.

You (the spouse not on COPES) can always keep all income paid in your name, no matter how much. In addition, if the income paid in your name is less than $1,839, you can keep as much of your spouse's income exceeding the $698 as is necessary to bring your income up to $1,839 per month. And, if your housing costs (rent or mortgage, maintenance fee for a condominium or cooperative, taxes, insurance, and utilities) exceed $552 per month, the $1,839 can be increased up to $2,841 by the amount of this excess. (In calculating housing costs, your actual costs for rent, mortgage, maintenance fee for a condominium or cooperative, taxes, and insurance are used. For utilities, however, a standard figure of $394 per month is used.)

If a COPES-recipient spouse is in an adult family home or other facility, then all but $62.79 of the $698 allocated to the recipient spouse must normally be paid to the facility for room and board. If this does not leave the couple with enough income to allow the spouse at home the amount he or she would otherwise get, as described in the last paragraph, there is a special problem. You can ask DSHS to make what is called "an exception to rule" to lower the amount paid to the facility, so that the money can be available to the spouse instead. (There is a dispute about whether denial of such a request would be allowed under federal law. If that problem affects you, you may wish to seek legal advice about it.)

Examples:

Your spouse is at home and on COPES. If $2,400 is paid in your name and $750 is paid in your spouse's name, you can keep $2,400. Your spouse can keep $698 of his or her income and would pay $52 to the COPES provider.

If $750 is paid in your name and $2,400 is paid in your spouse's name, you can keep your $750 plus at least $1,089 of your spouse's income ($1,839 - $750 = $1,089). And if your housing costs are $800 per month, you can keep an additional $248 of your spouse's income because the $1,839 level is increased by the excess of your housing costs over $552 ($800 - $552 = $248).

A spouse of a COPES recipient may be allowed to keep more of a COPES recipient's income if a superior court judge orders higher support (for example, in a legal separation proceeding) or if an administrative law judge decides that there are "exceptional circumstances resulting in extreme financial duress."

A COPES recipient may also be entitled to an additional allowance for the care of a dependent family member.

7. What resources can we have when my spouse applies for COPES?

When your spouse applies for COPES, the two of you can have any resources that are "exempt" - a home and a car, for example. Exempt resources are explained in the answer to Question 8 below.

You can also have non-exempt resources up to a certain value. (Non-exempt resources include such things as cash, most funds in bank accounts, and investments.) The limit includes the $2,000 that a single COPES recipient is permitted to have plus an amount established by the "Community Spouse Resource Allowance" or "CSRA."

The CSRA is at least $48,639. When your spouse applies for COPES, you and your spouse can have at least $50,639 of non-exempt resources ($48,639 allowed for you and $2,000 allowed for your spouse). At the time of application, it does not matter which spouse owns what or whether the $50,639 or any part of it is community or separate property. All resources of both spouses will be added together to determine eligibility.

Sometimes the Community Spouse Resource Allowance can be more than $48,639. It can be more if one of the following exceptions apply:

(1) If your spouse is currently institutionalized (in a hospital or nursing home), and you can show that the combined resources of both spouses were more than $97,278 when the current period of institutionalization began, then you may be entitled to a CSRA of more than $48,639. If this exception applies, the CSRA is increased to half of the combined resources that the couple had at the time the period of institutionalization began. The maximum amount that the CSRA can be increased to is $113,640.

(2) You may be allowed to keep more non-exempt resources if the combined income of both spouses is not enough to give you what is allowed by the rules explained in the answer to Question 6 above ($1,822 to $2,841). To do this, a spouse who is not on COPES must request a decision from DSHS, at the time of application, that more resources are necessary to produce the permitted income level.

(3) If your spouse is currently institutionalized (in a hospital or nursing home) and the current period of institutionalization began before August 1, 2003, then your CSRA is $113,640.

You can reduce excess resources that make your spouse ineligible for COPES in various ways. You can spend the excess resources on such things as medical care, on home repair, on the purchase of exempt resources, or on consumable goods or services, so long as you receive fair value for your money. Or you can buy an annuity that converts the excess resources to monthly income, if the annuity satisfies the requirements of DSHS regulations. To determine whether a particular annuity satisfies DSHS requirements and whether a particular financial plan makes sense in your particular case, you should consult a lawyer familiar with Medicaid law.

The explanation above responds to the question “What resources can I have when my spouse applies for COPES?” An entirely different rule applies once your spouse is already on COPES. After an application is approved, continuing eligibility of the spouse on COPES will not be affected by increases in the resources of the spouse who is not on COPES. In other words, if one spouse is already on COPES, the other spouse’s resources can increase above the limit that applied at the time of the eligibility determination. The increase will not affect the COPES eligibility of the spouse on COPES.

At the time of application, it does not matter which spouse owns resources. But, within a year after a COPES application is approved, anything over $2,000 must be transferred to the non-COPES spouse. Then, the spouse on COPES must not have more than $2,000 worth of non-exempt resources in his or her name.

8. What resources are not counted to determine COPES eligibility?

A. What are exempt resources?

Some resources are considered exempt and are not counted toward the $2,000 and $48,639 to $113,640 resource limits that were discussed in the previous section. Exempt resources can include your home, household goods and personal effects, some real estate sales contracts, a car, life insurance with a face value of $1,500 or less, most burial plots and prepaid burial plans, and certain other property and items used for self-support. Some of these are discussed in more detail below.

Also, non-exempt resources that cannot be sold within 20 working days are temporarily disregarded while being sold.

B. When is a home exempt?

A home (which may be a house and all surrounding land, a condominium or a mobile home) may be an exempt resource. The exemption applies if the COPES recipient lives in the home, or is temporarily absent but intends to return to it. It also applies as long as the recipient’s spouse or, in some cases, a dependent relative continues to live in the home.

The exemption does not apply to a home in which the COPES recipient has an equity interest of more than $525,000 unless one of the following exceptions applies: (1) the recipient is receiving services based on an application for DSHS-administered long-term-care services filed before May 1, 2006; or (2) the recipient’s spouse or the recipient’s child who is under 21 or blind disabled resides in the home. (The disability criteria for this purpose are the same as those used for Social Security disability determinations.)

Even when a home is exempt, a married Medicaid applicant or recipient still may wish to transfer his or her interest in it to a spouse. Such a transfer may be made to prevent future recovery of Medicaid costs from a Medicaid recipient's estate (see Question 10 below), or to make it easier for the spouse to sell or otherwise dispose of the home. But, such a transfer is not always a good idea. It may, for example, have adverse tax or other consequences in some cases. Before making such a transfer, you should consult with a lawyer familiar with Medicaid rules and estate planning .

The proceeds from the sale of an exempt home are also exempt if, within three months of when they are received, they are used to purchase a new exempt home.

C. When is a sales contract exempt?

The seller's interest in any sales contract entered into before December 1, 1993 is an exempt resource unless it is transferred. A sales contract entered into after November 30, 1993 is exempt only if it is a contract for the sale of the seller's home and includes fair market terms. A sales contract entered into after May 2004 is exempt only if it is for the sale of the seller's principal residence at the time he or she began a period in a medical facility (including a nursing home) or on COPES and if it requires repayment of the principal within the seller's "anticipated life expectancy." The payments received under an exempt sales contract will be treated as income.

D. When is a car exempt?

One car is exempt, no matter how much it is worth, if it is used for transportation either for the COPES recipient or for a member of the recipient's household. If the recipient is married, only one car is exempt for the couple and the "used for transportation" requirement does not apply, unless the second spouse lives in a hospital or nursing home.

E. When is life insurance exempt?

The cash surrender value of life insurance may be claimed as exempt if the total face value (amount payable at death) is not more than $1,500. For couples, each spouse may claim $1,500. If the face value of an individual's life insurance is more than $1,500, the entire cash surrender value (the amount payable if the policy is canceled) is counted as a non-exempt resource. (It will count as part of the $2,000 or $48,639 to $113,640 resource limits discussed in the previous section.) Life insurance with no cash surrender value has no effect on COPES eligibility.

F. When are burial funds and burial spaces exempt?

A burial fund of $1,500 for an individual (and an additional $1,500 for a spouse) may be claimed as exempt if set aside in a clearly designated account to cover burial or cremation expenses. If an individual has life insurance that is claimed as exempt, then the face value of the life insurance will count as part of the individual's burial fund. So, for example, if a COPES recipient has exempt life insurance with a face value of $1,000, then only $500 may be exempted in a designated account for burial expenses.

An irrevocable trust for burial expenses or a pre-paid burial plan may be claimed as exempt as long as it does not exceed reasonably anticipated burial expenses. The value of such a trust or plan will count against the exemption for burial funds or life insurance.

Burial spaces for COPES recipients and immediate family members are exempt no matter how much they are worth.

G. When are household goods and personal effects exempt?

Household furniture and other household goods, as well as clothing, jewelry and personal care items are exempt regardless of value.

9. Can I transfer resources without affecting COPEs eligibility?

A. Rules for transfers of a home

A home may be transferred without penalty to any of the individuals described below. (The person making the transfer does not need to live in the home at the time of the transfer.)

- A spouse
- A brother or sister who has an equity interest in the home and has lived there at least one year immediately before the date when their sibling's COPEs coverage or institutionalization began
- A child who has lived in the home and cared for the parent for two years immediately before the date of the parent's current COPEs coverage or institutionalization (If this requirement is met, it does not matter when the property is transferred to the child.)
- A child who is under 21, or blind or disabled (The disability criteria for this purpose are the same as those used for Social Security disability determinations.)

B. Rules for other transfers to a spouse or disabled child

There is no penalty for transferring resources to a spouse or a disabled child.

(Again, the disability criteria are the same as those used for Social Security disability determinations.)

Remember that the resources of both spouses are added together in determining initial COPEs eligibility. So, if a couple has more resources than are permitted at the time of application, a transfer from one spouse to the other will not solve that problem.

A transfer to a spouse or to a disabled child may be made without penalty either before or after an individual qualifies for COPEs or Medicaid.

C. Rules for other transfers to someone other than a spouse or disabled child

(1) Transfers without penalty

- (a) There is no penalty if you sell your resources for their fair market value.
- (b) Exempt resources (see Question 7), other than the home or a sales contract, may be given to anyone without penalty.
- (c) There is no penalty for gifts made after April 2006 as long as the total amount in any calendar month is $246 or less. (Different rules apply if you made gifts before May 2006 and you applied for COPEs or Medicaid for nursing home care before May 2009.)
- (d) There is no penalty for gifts of any value made more than 60 months before applying for COPEs or Medicaid for nursing homes.
- (e) No matter when a transfer is made, there is no penalty if you can demonstrate that the transfer was not made to qualify for COPES or Medicaid for nursing home care.

(2) Transfers resulting in penalties

There may be a penalty if you transfer non-exempt resources, or sales contracts, or a home (except to one of the people listed above), for less than fair market value within 60 months of applying for Medicaid. The penalty is a period of ineligibility for COPES or Medicaid for long-term-care services. The length of ineligibility depends on the value and timing of the transfer. There is no maximum length for a period of ineligibility.

(3) Calculating periods of ineligibility

The process of calculating periods of ineligibility is slightly complicated. After reading the following explanation, if you are left with questions about the effects of gifts you have made or are considering, you should talk with a lawyer who knows Medicaid rules.

Note: The explanations below apply to COPES applications made between October 1, 2011 and September 30, 2012. (The numbers change each October.)

To determine the period of ineligibility, take the total of all gifts made within 60 months before applying and divide the total by 246. The number of days of ineligibility is the result of this division. The period of ineligibility does not begin to run until the first day of the month in which an applicant for Medicaid-funded long-term-care services is eligible in all other respects except for the period of ineligibility. This means that the applicant must satisfy the income and resource eligibility requirements and must meet the level-of-care requirements for COPES or Medicaid for nursing home care.

Also, to start the period of ineligibility running the Department requires that an individual make an application – in effect, seeking a determination by the Department that he or she is “otherwise eligible.”

If the gift is made when an individual is already receiving COPES coverage, then the period of ineligibility normally begins on the first day of the month following a notice of the penalty period, but no later than the first day of the month that follows three full calendar months from the date of the report or discovery (by DSHS) of the transfer. There is one exception to this norm. The penalty period will begin later if another penalty period is already in progress. In that case the new penalty period starts after the current one is completed.

Example:

If you made gifts totaling \$20,000 between May and August 2011 and were otherwise eligible and applied for COPES in October 2011, you would calculate the period of ineligibility by dividing 20,000 by 246 to produce 81 days of ineligibility. ($20,000 \div 246 = 81.3$, which rounds down to 81.) The period of ineligibility would begin on October 1, 2011, assuming that you were otherwise eligible on that day.

Remember that a gift will not make an applicant resource eligible in the month of the gift if resources were too high on the first day of the month.

Generally, before you apply for COPES or Medicaid for nursing home care, the same restrictions apply to transfers by you or your spouse. If you or your spouse gives away resources, either gift may result in a period of ineligibility for you. Once you are receiving COPES or Medicaid for nursing-home care, however, gifts made by your spouse will not affect your continuing eligibility.

(4) Waiver of periods of ineligibility

DSHS may waive a period of ineligibility if it finds that denial of benefits would cause undue hardship. Such a waiver may lead to imposition of a civil fine on the recipient of a gift if the recipient “was aware, or should have been aware,” that the gift was made for the purpose of qualifying for Medicaid.

10. Will COPES payments result in a lien or claim against my estate?

DSHS can normally recover from a COPES recipient’s estate what it paid for the recipient’s care after the recipient turned 55. Recovery will be delayed if, at the time of death, the COPES recipient has a surviving spouse, registered domestic partner, or surviving child who is under 21 or blind or disabled.

The DSHS estate-recovery claim only applies to property owned at death by a COPES recipient. No claim can be made against property solely owned by a spouse or child. This may be an important reason to consult a lawyer familiar with COPES and Medicaid rules about permissible transfers of property. More information about estate recovery is available in the Columbia Legal Services pamphlet “Estate recovery for medical services paid for by the State.”

11. Can I get help with the application process?

Many people need help applying for COPES or Medicaid. Often there are family members or friends, or staff members of a hospital or nursing home or other agency, who are able to help. Help is also available from DSHS staff, especially for people who have physical or mental impairments that make it hard to get through the application process on their own.

If you need help in the application process from DSHS, you or someone else should tell a DSHS representative that you need help. DSHS rules require what are called “necessary supplemental accommodation services” when they are needed. These services include help filling out forms and help finding information or papers needed for your application.

COPES rules are complicated. Before taking steps you don’t understand, you should get individualized legal advice.
